Introducing

Royal Hill Park

Welcome to Royal Hill Park - a unique development of 3, 4 and 5-bedroom new homes. Working in partnership with the Royal National Institute of Blind people (RNIB), the development provides inclusive accommodation for RNIB residents as well as 77 stylish private homes in Redhill, Surrey. Redhill offers both extensive access to the rolling hills of the North Downs combined with convenient train links to the heart of London. Aside from its great location, Redhill itself is the perfect setting for family life with the abundance of choice when it comes to schooling.

BEHIND EVERY NAME, THERE IS A STORY

The partnership between the RNIB and Countryside is an important relationship so incorporating the 'Royal' is a subtle homage to this and the sensory trail, which runs through the heart of the development. Where the development is surrounded and shares its home with nature and the sloping hills of the North Downs- Royal Hill Park seemed a fitting name to create this amazing community and deliver homes with a true sense of belonging.

History of the Development; in partnership with RNIB

Royal Hill Park is the perfect partnership between a leading charity, a respected housebuilder and an innovative landscape architect, working together to create a phenomenal environment that will bring excitement, joy and peace to all its residents.

Set serenely into the picturesque Surrey hillside, and accommodating the needs of a diverse range of residents, the former Redhill College site, latterly the RNIB's community living resource, has been sensitively re-developed to create a community where private homes and housing for supported residents peacefully coexist against a beautiful countryside backdrop.

Expanding on the historic Grade-II listed Tudor house and surrounding gardens, with some trees dating back 200 years, Royal Hill Park's thoughtfully-designed living areas and communal spaces show complete respect for its greenbelt location, and represent a model for integrated supported living.

"I am both proud and excited to present the proposals for the redevelopment of the Redhill site. These proposals will transform the lives of our existing blind and partially sighted residents and deliver facilities which both benefit them and the neighbouring community. For a number of years now we have struggled to provide even a basic level of service for our residents with poor and failing facilities. This development will not only put that right but it will also produce a model for integrated supported living which we believe will be unique in this country and which other providers will want to follow.

The vision for the Redhill site is to re-provide the existing supported living accommodation to ensure it meets current Care Quality Commission (CQC) standards and to also create a community which fully integrates our visually impaired clients with other residents on the site.

The new service has also been developed to meet the future needs of our key stakeholder, Surrey County Council, on supported living and is very closely aligned with the current policy shift away from registered care to supported living as a preferred means of providing care and support for the majority of people with learning disabilities.

Lesley-Anne Alexander
Chief Executive of RNIB

RNIB supporting blind and partially sighted people

BASED IN THE STUNNING SOUTH-FACING GREENSAND VALLEY IN SURREY, ROYAL HILL PARK HAS BEEN THE BASE FOR CHARITABLE SERVICES FOR NEARLY 200 YEARS. THE ROYAL PHILANTHROPIC SOCIETY FOR THE REFORMATION OF JUVENILE OFFENDERS OPENED ITS FARM SCHOOL ON THE SITE IN 1849. THE SITE WAS TAKEN OVER BY THE RNIB IN 1988, BECOMING REDHILL COLLEGE AND CATERING FOR UP TO 120 STUDENTS. IN THE FOLLOWING YEARS, IT OPERATED AS THE COMMUNITY LIVING SERVICE PROVIDING RESIDENTIAL CARE AND ASSISTED LIVING ACCOMMODATION TO BLIND OR PARTIALLY SIGHTED RESIDENTS. IN 2012, THE RNIB PARTNERED WITH COUNTRYSIDE TO OFFER SPECIALIST ACCOMMODATION FOR RNIB RESIDENTS ALONGSIDE THE DEVELOPMENT OF NEW HOMES.

A sensational array of colour, form, scent and sound

Designed in consultation with blind and partially sighted residents, Royal Hill Park's stunning gardens incorporate plants and materials selected specifically to provide a multi-sensory experience.

We draw heavily on the history and the land, nestling homes within the surrounds but adding that little extra for residents and the surrounding wildlife.

Thoughtfully-created pathways and seating areas that engage the senses of both the visually impaired and fully-sighted unify the whole development.

Countryside Properties and the RNIB are exceptionally proud to have collaborated on the unique Mind's Eye Garden; a landmark feature designed by award-winning landscape architects LDC.

Drawing heavily on the history and the land, the sensory trail aids navigation across Royal Hill Park, culminating at a focal point designed for everyone to immerse themselves in a feast for touch, smell, hearing, taste and sight.

Originally created for the 2014 Chelsea Flower Show, where it won Gold, the Mind's Eye Garden is a sensory delight for everyone to experience, incorporating colour texture, form and sound. Water channels act as wayfinders and the garden also features coloured glass panels, cascading plantlife, fragrant shrubs, sheer surfaces, a huge variety of materials and a central glass cube water feature surrounded by four distinct planting zones.

Construction of the sensory trail and the landscaping around Royal Hill Park started in 2016, before the homes were built, so plants have had time to establish and mature before the new development has been nestled into its surroundings. The sensory trail exemplifies how show garden design can sit hand-in hand with real-life development to the benefit of everyone who lives there.
