first class education

Whether primary or secondary, there are many, highly regarded, outstanding schools in the Borough of Hammersmith & Fulham, including excellent nurseries. With London being recognised as a leading global centre for higher education, St George developments in West London have easy access to the local area's best schools and the City's many respected universities, providing a sound investment for children and the future.

With two of London's most prestigious private schools – The Godolphin & Latymer for girls and St Paul's for boys, along with Kensington campus of Imperial College just down the road and world-leading universities and colleges nearby, Hammersmith has some of the best education London has to offer.

The London Oratory School

2 Seagrave Road, London, SW6 1RX

- ✓ Boys and girls
- ✓ Ages: Boys (ages 7 - 18) and girls (ages 16 - 18)
- ✓ Ofsted rating: Outstanding

Overview

The London Oratory School is one of England's oldest and most distinguished Catholic state-funded schools. Although perhaps best known as a boys' school, girls are admitted into the sixth form. It aims to provide education in accordance with the principles and teachings of the Catholic faith. The school doesn't shy away from setting out exactly what is expected of pupils, and indeed parents. It demands nothing short of high standards of excellence in all activities. But it's that traditional focus on hard work and discipline that sees the London Oratory School outperform many of its illustrious fee-paying rivals.

Holland Park School

Airlie Gardens, Campden Hill Road, Kensington, London W8 7AF

- ✓ Boys and girls
- ✓ Ages: 11 – 18
- ✓ Ofsted rating: Outstanding

Overview

Holland Park is a highly successful and over-subscribed comprehensive school in the heart of west central London. It is recorded as one of the country's top performing Humanities Colleges and praised in the Good Schools Guide as a school which "has seen a steep and continuing rise in results".

The school is profoundly committed to exacting high standards, to formality, to demanding creative excellence from its staff and students. Seeing pupil's potential and making detailed plans for its realisation is at the centre of its approach. Recognising pupil's personal strengths and development profile is important to the school. Holland Park is a forward thinking, well-articulated institution and is passionate about the equality of opportunity.

Jack Tizard School

South Africa Road, London, W12 7PA

- ✓ Boys and girls
- ✓ Ages: 5 – 11
- ✓ Ofsted rating: Outstanding

Overview

As an academy school funding is received direct from the Government. The school is linked with Godolphin & Latymer and Charterhouse independent schools, which helps provide pupils with opportunities that are unique in the state sector. The school is also partnered with LAMDA and the Royal Academy of Dance and have a specialism in performing and creative arts subjects.

Their aim is to be not just an outstanding school, but also a centre of excellence in teaching and learning with teachers given the time, training and management they need to become the best in their fields. At KAA the pupils receive a consistent diet of outstanding lessons, and extensive enrichment opportunities beyond that.

private schools

The Godolphin & Latymer School

4 Iffley Road, W6 0PG

✓ Girls

✓ Ages: 11 – 18

Overview

The school, and the girls who go here, ooze a down-to-earth confidence. Godolphin & Latymer is building a reputation for being that rare thing among London independent secondary schools – grounded. The fact that the school interviews everyone who applies is perhaps why it's able to retain a refreshingly inclusive, compassionate air.

The facilities are not only impressive, they're geared to setting girls up for the modern world. Technology workshops, classroom iPads and music production suites all point to a school that isn't content to rest on its laurels. Offering older girls the choice between A-Levels or the International Baccalaureate is indicative of a forward-thinking curriculum too.

TLG West London

St Paul's Centre, Macbeth Street, Hammersmith, London W6 9JJ

✓ Boys and girls

✓ Ages: 11 – 16

✓ Ofsted rating: Good

Overview

TGL West London is an independent school that helps young people who are at crisis in their educational experience. As a reflection of their underpinning Christian ethos, their practice is to uphold and encourage respect, care, love, acceptance and belonging among staff and pupils.

The school is designed to help individuals grow in confidence, raise their aspirations and reach their full potential – providing building blocks for a better life. They seek to engage young people on pathways to learning with accredited outcomes, that facilitate reintegration back into school, or progression on to further education or employment with training.

Bute House Preparatory School

Luxemburg Gardens, Hammersmith, London W6 7EA

✓ Girls

✓ Ages: 4 – 11

✓ Ofsted rating: Outstanding

Overview

A dynamic, exciting, vibrant, rounded school where girls flourish and thrive, but most importantly, have a great deal of fun. The children are being educated to work in a world which, in some ways, we cannot imagine yet. The school believes that being secure and safe in their own skins, and having a strong sense of self and their place in the world, will always be required.

Bute House teaches girls aged from 4 to 11 who have a broad range of talents, personalities and abilities. At every stage teaching is organised in mixed ability classes to allow each girl to experience maximum personal success in all areas. Excellent results and high academic standards are achieved without unnecessary competition and pressure, and girls are encouraged to discover and celebrate their natural talents, whether these are academic, sporting, artistic, musical or dramatic.

St Paul's Girls' School

5 Brook Green, W6 7BS

✓ Girls

Overview

The atmosphere at St Paul's Girls' School is unexpectedly relaxed. Pupils are not required to wear a uniform and the emphasis is on cultivating individuality and academic independence. Relaxed perhaps, but this school is no slacker with leavers regularly skipping off to the top universities in the country.

Naturally studious girls thrive here, but when they aren't poring over their books they can be found taking part in one of the umpteen extra-curricular or sporting activities on offer. There are numerous well-established, interesting clubs and societies to choose from as well as a diverse range of sports. Think water polo, fencing, lacrosse and equestrian (among others). Not to mention all the philanthropic ventures.

Le Hérisson School

Rivercourt Methodist Church,
Rivercourt Road, London W6 9JT

✓ Boys and girls

✓ Ages: 2 – 6

✓ Ofsted rating: Good

Overview

A small, independent nursery and preschool providing the opportunity for the youngest citizens of the world to be immersed in the French language, in a happy, gentle but stimulating environment.

Le Hérisson understand the advantages of developing a second language in young children to give them opportunities and choices in life. The early years education at Le Hérisson is a balance between learning through play and, as the child progresses through the school, formal learning.

Priding themselves in offering an option of bilingual education, this allows families the option to further their child's education in the French Maternelle curriculum by then moving to the French system of education, either locally or further afield. Equally they support families who wish to follow the British system of education.

Le Hérisson School is the first step on the international education ladder for children of the future.

Ecole Française de Londres Jacques Prévert

59 Brook Green, Hammersmith,
London W6 7BE

✓ Boys and girls

✓ Ages: 3 – 11

✓ Ofsted rating: Outstanding

Overview

The 'Ecole Française de Londres Jacques Prévert' is a French independent school in Hammersmith, founded in 1974, initially to serve the local community of French nationals.

The school is 'une école conventionnée' subject to the authority of the French Ministry of Education, exercised through the Agence pour l'Enseignement Français à l'Etranger (AEFE) and the French Embassy in London. The school teaches the French national school curriculum in French. A substantial amount of time is devoted to the teaching of English.

As a French school in London, the school aims to 'promote a warm and friendly, family atmosphere and to provide a harmonious educational experience based on the official French programmes, and open to the culture of the United Kingdom'.

The majority of pupils are bilingual and the school contributes to strengthening the cooperative relationship between the French and English education systems. When they leave school at the end of grade 4, pupils automatically go to school in a French secondary school in London; a small number, however, choose to continue their studies in an English school.

St Paul's School

6 Lonsdale Road, SW13 9JT

✓ Boys

✓ Ages: 13 – 18

✓ Ofsted rating: Outstanding

Overview

Having clocked over 500 years as a school, St Paul's has a piece of history in every magnificent brick and cornice.

St Paul's has a whopping 45 acres of land – plenty of room to accommodate the boat house, various pitches, swimming pool, tennis courts and running track. Luckily pupils are given a two-hour lunch break – ample time to make use of all those sporting facilities.

This is where the brightest and best are steered towards an even brighter and better future. And yet, there isn't that over-pressurised atmosphere you'll find in most top performing schools. In fact, these high achievers are surprisingly low key.

University College London

2 Gower Street, Bloomsbury, London WC1E 6BT

Overview

The main UCL campuses are situated in and around Bloomsbury in central London – making it a very quick commute from the environs of Chelsea, Fulham or Battersea. As well as admitting the best of the best to study in its hallowed halls (there are currently some 35,000 students), UCL is also a respected research facility and manager of umpteen culturally significant museums and collections.

This is one of the top universities not only in England but the world. Matriculation is competitive here and students really need to make A*s and As at A-level in order to be successful. UCL is considered to be an academic all-rounder with top-notch teaching staff across all its courses – from mathematics and medicine to physics and psychology. But the campus is certainly conducive to studying hard. Beautiful buildings – all towering columns and vaulted ceilings – serve to inspire the burgeoning intellectual.

London School of Economics

4 Houghton Street, London WC2A 2AE

Overview

LSE is recognised as the world's leading dedicated social sciences institution. Whilst it carved out its reputation in economics (over a quarter of all Nobel Prizes in Economics have been awarded to LSE alumni), the university offers courses in the fields of politics, law, business and more.

70% of the student body at LSE are international students, making the Holborn-based campus a real global melting pot. There is a culture of big ambition at LSE, with many leavers taking up positions in the City of London to embark on illustrious, and often lucrative, careers. The fact that, out of all European universities, LSE has educated the most billionaires says something about the self-assuredness of the institution itself and the people who study here.

King's College London

5 Strand, London, WC2R 2LS

Overview

King's lays claim to being the fourth oldest university in the country, having been established in 1829. Its historic heart is on the Strand, but four other campuses across London cater for its 30,000-strong student body. It has an impressive academic reputation in many areas but is world-renowned for its healthcare education – across medicine, dentistry and nursing in particular.

Some of King's facilities are spread across multiple sites, but it still manages to retain a sense of identity that is the envy of most London universities. Many of the buildings it occupies are steeped in history – from the Round Reading Room and the Maughan Library, to the imposing Bush House and the Grade I listed King's College Chapel on the Strand.
